DOUGLAS COUNTY POLITICS.

Quiet Election in Lincoln District.

Last Saturday the great trustee election was held in Lincoln District Douglas county. The forces were massed in the field early in the morning and the polls opened with great formality at the school house.

There were two non-partisan tickets. L. S. Esell, Fred Dangberg and William Studick on one ticket; Hans Anderson, L. S. Esell and William Studick on the other. Early in the action Fred Dangberg came in heading the vote of his entire ranch, numbering eight men. After that there was a lull in the proceedings and the judges of election took a quiet nap.

At 10 minutes to 4, who should heave in sight but Herman Springmeyer and his ranch vote, numbering six, and six neighbors. These votes were deposited in due form and after they were all received the polls closed. When news of this vote reached Dangberg's ranch there was great excitement and the Dangberg factor began to rake the outlying country for more votes. They did not have time however, to fill their shorts and the polls closed promptly at 4 o'clock. The count showed 20 votes polled. Two of the Dangberg votes were thrown out.

The ballots showed that Dangberg's name had been scratched and the two names inserted were unintelligible to the judges. The result was announced:

Studick, 18.
Esell, 18.
Anderson, 12.
Dangberg, 6.

The three on the ticket receiving the highest vote were declared elected.

The lamp struck the chandelier, broke it, put out the gas and, missing the head of Mr. Putnam, passed through the window and exploded in the yard below. There was much excitement and a miraculous escape of the audience from injury.

HIGH TIMES IN EAST FORK.

Great Excitement at the Polls.

While the school election in Lincoln district, Douglas county, was very quiet, they were not so fortunate in East Fork. The contest for the School Trusteeship was between the Dangbergs and Rodenbaugh factors. On the morning of election, Chris. Dangberg sent Peter Millet's up into Red Canyon to scour the country for prospectors and bring them in to vote. Several wagon loads of prospectors came down, and it is also charged that the Dangbergs knocked off the cable end of the County Poor House and liberated the inmates to vote. During the day 30 votes were polled, and at one time as many as eight men were massed around the school house. Each party accused the other of swindling the county on contracts, and during the dispute several of the yeomanry pulled off their blouses and turned loose. Rodenbaugh charged Chris. Dangberg with robbing the German school children of the benefits of an American education. Everybody in the dang burg was on the fight, and several swelled heads were seen next day. At the time the APPEAL informant left on a mule the vote showed that two of Rodenbaugh's faction were elected, and one tie.

Another election has been called to determine the tie, and another riot is on the tapis.

Janish.

Madam Janish captured the audience which gathered at the Opera House last night. Her impersonation of Princess Andrea was a subtle piece of work, worthy of a place in the highest rank of acting. There was no attempt at over acting, no rant of trickery, but a calm level grade of excellence which captivated every sense and showed the genius of the artist at every step.

The play is a very well constructed comedy-drama. It tells the story of a husband who, becoming infatuated with a ballet-dancer, is saved from his impending fate by his wife with the assistance of the police, and the subsequent repentance, forgiveness and reconciliation.

Mme. Janish has a support which is far above the average of travelling companies, Mr. Frank E. Aiken being especially worthy of mention. As "Prince Maurice," the husband of "Princess Andrea," he was decidedly entertaining and interesting, and gave an excellent stage picture of the character. His elocution is good, his gestures graceful and his general bearing in harmony with the star whom he so ably supports.

Leo Cooper, as "Minister of Police," also sustained his part very pleasingly.

George F. Moore, who essayed the role of "Frederick," the magnificent young man, and A. G. Enos, who took the part of "M. Felix," the jeweler, were not up to the requirements of their respective parts. Miss Jenny Karsner made a beautiful ballet girl.

Mme. Janish's costumes were quite elegant, and displayed her exquisite figure to good advantage. She is rather a handsome woman and has a most intellectual cast of features.

The Virginia people will be well entertained by Janish.

The Gazette and the Carson Papers.

The Reno Gazette reads the "Carson newspapers" a moral lesson about the ethics of journalism. It says that the Carson papers charged the San Francisco journals with suppressing news in the Kissane case and then refused to publish the charges against Dr. Bishop.

The cases are not at all parallel. Kissane had been tried in a Court of Justice, found guilty and sentenced. He jumped the train, made his escape etc., etc. He was simply a fugitive from justice.

The APPEAL declined to publish the charges against Bishop because they were unproven and also unfit for the columns of a newspaper of general circulation. The Gazette charges that the Carson papers now condemn Bishop before the trial is over. The APPEAL has reached no conclusion as yet regarding Bishop's guilt or innocence, nor does it propose to until the evidence is all in.

—FOR SALE.—A large roomy residence in the Western part of the city. Fine location. Apply at this office.

ALL SORTS.

—Wizard Oil at Geo. Thaxter's.

—T. B. Rickey returned from below yesterday.

—Mrs. Julius Isaacs of San Francisco is visiting Mrs. Jake Tobriner in this city.

—Chas. Hofer of the firm of Hofer Bros. has leased Dean Hatch's old residence.

—A crayon picture of Assemblyman Pike is on exhibition at Cagwin & Noteware's window.

—It is rumored that the Interstate Commerce bill knocks free passes on the Tahoe Boats. The Lake is doomed.

—Reno is moving in the 4th of July celebration. Isn't it about time that Carson moved for the celebration of the Fourth and Decoration Day?

—The Resolute Baseball Club of Storey county, issues a challenge to any organized baseball club of Nevada for a match game for $50 or $150 a side, the game to be played at Carson or Steamboat.

—Ex-Governor Blasdel had his son-in-law arrested in Oakland for coming to his house drunk and making Rome howl by standing before the Blasdel mansion and filling the air with Alameda county war-whoops.

—The last Chicago strike cost $1,200,000. What a home for infirm working men, this sum would have built. Think of the land it would have purchased. What a fine cooperative grocery and provision store it would have started. Where is that $1,200,000 now?

Lottery.

A lottery agent in this city informs the APPEAL that he sells lottery tickets regularly to at least one hundred families.

"All take 'em; father, mother and the children. There are little yearling babies in this city, who each month hold a tenth coupon and stand a chance of winning $15,000. The craze is spreading, and new people buy tickets through me every month. There are at least half a dozen other agents in town, all doing a big business. I deal mostly with families. Some agents deal with shopmen, some with boys, some with sports, etc., etc. We all have different classes to furnish but everybody buys, and they will keep it up till dooms day"

Stocks.

The stock boom foreshadowed by the APPEAL two weeks ago is now on. Yesterday Con. Virginia passed the $20 line on the dead jump and bounded along at the rate of about 50 cents an hour. Everything on the list was strong on advancing and the boom sets in with a healthy activity delightful to witness. Everything going on about Virginia points to renewed life on the Comstock. Everything is now reported ready for crosscutting and there is over 2,000 feet of ground to penetrate for good ore. Stocks promise to be exceedingly lively for the rest of the week.

Mackay's Cabin.

It is proposed to bring John Mackay's cabin down from the mountains and set it up in San Francisco, as an object of curiosity. The APPEAL office has an old frying pan which used to be used in frying slap jacks, by John Mackay. It is an excellent receptacle for old job ink an occasionally the APPEAL devil throws it at a cat, in the back yard. If the archaeological society of San Francisco want it to put in the cabin, they had better open negotiations at once before it is snapped up.

Quick Work.

A few days ago Mr. Bliss determined to see how quickly he could saw up a pine tree and utilize the lumber. Accordingly, in the morning a log was taken out of Lake Tahoe and the timber marked as it was sawed up. It was sent up the narrow gauge, then down the flume, and at 3 o'clock the same afternoon it was under the floor of Mr. Bliss' new barn. It was all accomplished in less than 9 hours.

Struck It.

For months the Comstock papers have made fun of the divining rod man at Kirman's mine. Months ago he predicted water at 500 feet. Day before yesterday the water was struck at 497 feet. Not a drop was encountered prior to that time. Whose turn is it to laugh now?
